COMMERCIAL. London, Nov. 5 | Havre. Liverpool, Nov. 2 | New York, ...

THURSDAY EVENING, DEC. 2. To-day's mail brought us nothing late from the east-ward, dates being only of the 11th ult from New York, the 24th being due. We received a Charleston paper of the 25th, but it contains nothing commercially of interest heavy rain had fallen in that neighborhood for several days, the effects of which, it was anticipated, would receive at that point more than two thirds of the quant day morning, the drawds have been about 7:00 bales, of which, nearly 17:00 bales from the Warrier river. The planters need be quider no apprehensions this senson respecting the situation of their cotton in bad weather, after and press sheds annually erected, afford full accom-buyers favor—some say 4c. To-day, there has been a general enquiry, and a disposition exists to operate freely, provided holders will meet their views; these, we understand to be a concession of }c upon prices current previom to the receipt of the foreign advices. Helders are desirous of selling, but generally refuse to yield to this extent. In some cases we hear of purchases of crop lots at at a full 4c decline upon the prices asked on Tuesday.—

Sales 52509 bales.

CALCULATING BOY.—Among the many boys employed for the different purposes of calculation on the ordnance survey of Ireland, there is at present one named Alexander Gwin, only eight years old, and a native of Derry, whose abilities at his early age are truly surprising. He has got by rote the fractional legarithms from 1 to 1000, which he will repeat in regular rotation, or otherwise, as the interrogator may put the questions. It is certainly astonishing to think so tender a mind can retain with such tenacity and correctness seven figures of an answer (according to their different variations) for 1000 numbers. His rapidity and correctness in the various calculations of trigonometrical distances, triangles, &c., are amazingly beyond any thing we have ever wincessed. He can in less than one minute make a return in acres, rods, perches, &c., of any quantity of land, by giving him the surveyor's chained distances, while the greatest arithmetician, with all his knowledge, will certainly take nearly an hour for do the same, and not to be certain of truth in the end.

We have meationed the acquittal of B. W. Green on the indictments against him for fraud, in the Saperior Court at Richmond. The Compiler says that when the jury returned with the verdict of not gilly—"to the shame of Richmond, and to the everlusting disgrace of Judicial Authority, a yell of appliance burst forth from the densely crowded auditory which defies description now, as it did then all effort to repress it. Upon the Clerk's pronouncing the verdict of the Jury, the Commonwealth's Attorney property was still in custody upon other indictments, at the Court accordingly remanded hits to jail. The prisoner's coursel then proposed to offer bail, but the Court refused to catertain the proposition, leaving it for the General Court which sits in a few days. The whole scene was one of shameful confusion owing to whole scene was one of shameful confusion owing to the disturbance of bystanders."

George Colman, getting out of a hackney coach one night, gave the driver a shilling. "This is a bad shil-ling, sir," said Jarvey. "Then it's all right," said George, with his inimitable chuckle; "it's all right; yours is a bad coach."

Hook being proposed a member of the Phoenix Clab, he asked when they met, "Every Saturday evening during the winter." Then said he, "I shall never make a I'h zaix, for I cant' rise from the fire.

George Simpson a member of the Washington Greys, of New York, was expelled from the Company, for doclaring that if a war broke out, he would leave the Company and join the British!

THE PATRONS OF EDITORS.—Baron Cotts, of astria, Mr. Reimer, of Berlin, and Mr. Brockhans, of Leipsic, are the most extensive publishers in the world.—The first employs four hundred editors, and the two last, one hundred each.

DEATH IN THE PULPIT.—The Rev. Frederick Transcarman, while preaching at Manchester, N. Y., tall down in the pulpit and expired. His disease was probably one of the heart. Mr. T. was formerly a preacher among the Methodists, but for several years has been connected with the Presbyterian denomina-tion.

The matter was brought before the Legislature, when counter-charges of favoritism and corruption, were made against the Bank Directory; and a resolution was introduced to appoint a committee to take testimony and investigate both sets of charges. On Monbay next, will commence the second session of the first Whig Congress. If there be any truth in political signs, it is not unlikely that before the close of the Congress, the party which at the be-ginning was all-powerful in both houses, will be meapable of commanding a working majority in either. Certainly, if they pay respect to the declarations of the popular wifl, as brought to them in tones impossible to be misunderstood, the same declarations to which at the late session, were assigned such indisputable force, when it was supposed that they cheered on the dominant party to the accomplishment of its wishes-if they are consistent in giving now the homage which they exacted then, to the results of popular elections—there will be an immediate change of lar elections—there will be an immediate change of policy; and the First Whig Congress will, in the first six months of its existence, cease to be Whig.— The working of this problem is at hand. The dis-tant members have been for some time moving towards Congress will be re-assembled—but under what dif-ferent auspices from those under which they came together in May last. Then, a triumphant party—fresh from the field, where they had totally, and to all appearance, irrecoverably overthrown their rivals-came up with songs of rejoicing, to take possession of the government—to parcel out the spoils of victory of the government—to parcel out the spoils of victory—to give the Law and the lash to the vanquished; and, backed by an unexampled popular vote, to build up schemes of power, stretching far into futurity, as though they had taken a bond of fate—and in the pride of their hearts, felt themselves beyond the chance of reverse. In the midst of their boisterous and intolerant exultations, the Democrats stood powerless but neverthaless regime their values in erless, but nevertheless raising their voices in un-ceasing warning against the dangerous designs of the despotic majority—in the confiding trust that, one day, reason would once more make herself heard in those halls, and the people themselves come up to the rescue. On one side, was the intoxication of unbounded joy, and the anticipation of long possession of power and place; on the other, the gloom of profund regret, and the steemers of the steemers. found regret, and the sternness of determined oppo-

Seven little months have passed, and mark the change! The huge combination which fought with such unhesitating zeal together, while united by a common sentiment of hostility to the late administration—crumbled into fragments as soon as complete uccess made it necessary to understand each other's purposes. At the very first test, their cohesion gave way; they lost confidence in each other, the moment they were required to determine how they should use the power which they had successfully combined to seize. They repreached each other with mutual de-ception, and common frauds upon the people; they taunted each other with pledges made by one part of them, with the intent to be disavowed by another; them, with the intent to be disavowed by another; and concealments, agreed upon for the sake of evading important questions before the people. They scrambled greedily for the spoils of office; and by their insatiate cravings, shortened the days of the Chief in whose name they had been led on to success.— And while, by these disclosures of sordid purposes and practices, they were losing the respect of the country, they instituted a series of political measures so vast and dangerous, that it drove off some of their most ardent friends, and filled the whole people with the greatest alarms. A monster Bank, organized as a central monied power under the eye of the Executive; a funded debt, to give strength to the machine. cutive; a funded debt, to give strength to the machine, and rally around it, the mighty influence of associated wealth, at home and from abroad; an increased tariff, to build up other class interests of capitalists, and fortify the entrenchments of a political influence built upon a monied combination; a formal surrender of the public lands, to tempt the capidity of the State governments, and ealist them to repress the murmura of their constituents at the increase of indirect burthe new system in all its branches of Debt, Tariffs, Distribution and Bank: these were spread before the nation as the policy of the Congressional majority, which, at the late session, dictated at the will of their leader, the law to the party and the President.

Happily, the firmness of the President in adherin anfully, amidst the general derelictions from principle, to the pledges of his own life and career-arrest ed the consummation of the chief of these mischievous easures-without which, the rest are incomplete; and suspended the fate of his country, till the people could be heard for themselves. Disappointment, dis-sention, wrath and denunciation followed; and in the midst of the discord, the party which had lately been omnipoteat in the Legislature, and in the elections, went before a roused people for their instructions at the polls.

The decision has been had. From one end of the Union to the other, wherever the forms of law would allow the authoritative expression of the public opi-nion, it has ben one of unqualified condemnation of the extra session, its leaders and their policy. Dis-aster after disaster has overtaken them; State after State has deserted them. Their adversaries, almost without beat of drum, have driven their friends from almost every foothold in the country; and at this day, though in possession of the forms of power by a Con-

in a lean minority of the people and the States .-What a lesson to the intemperance of politicians! what rebuke to the madness of party! what a consoling proof of the democratic truth, that the " sober second ought of the people" is the conservative principle of our liberties! Under this new aspect of things, will the seco ession of this Congress commence on Monday. The Democratic minority assembles under the invigorating consciousness that though outnumbered at roll-call, n the two halls of Congress; and restrained in their ported out of doors, by an applauding nation that them to hold on, without faltering, till the public will can make itself effectual in the constitutional manner,

THE WAR OF ENGLAND UPON CHINA.—A most immoral and hypocritical fallacy prevails as to this war. We constantly hear even well-informed and serious people justifying or excusing its disgraceful origin, by reference to its probable good results in introducing western civilization and Christianity among 300,000,000 of semi-harbarous people—Now, on such a plea, Nicholas of Russia is justified in his ruthless and fiendish attack on the nationality and independence of Circassia. Such an excuse would palliate any public crime; and on the principle which it involves, picking pockets may be deemed a moral act, because it is probable that the punishment consequent on conviction may lead to the reformation consequent on conviction may lead to the reformation of the criminal.

Any palliation of this war is idle; the legislature gave to the India Company a monopoly of opum, which was cultivated for the Chinese market, with a knowledge of its demoralizing and destructive effects on that people; and the present war is to defend British interests from the consequence of the illegal introduction of the poisonous drug into China. In its origin the war is wholly indefensible, though in the progress of the events which immediately led to hostilities, most undoubtedly the Chinese did grossly insult the honor of the British crown.—[London Morning Chronicle.]

DEATH OF BIS HOF MOORE.—For a week pas has this community, and particularly that of the Episcopal Church been kept in a state of anxiety in consequence of the dangerous illness of the Rt. Rev. Richard Channing Moore, (Bishop of this Episcopal Disocese,) in Lynchburg, where he had gone to discharge a service connected with his ministerial station.—This auxiety was merged into deep distress on Saturday evening, by the information of his death, which took place on Friday morning last in Lynchburg.

His remains were brought in the boat that conveyed intelligence of his demise. This event has solely afflicted his Church—the loss of so good, so venerable a minister, may well bear heavily upon its members; but the dispensation which so afflicts them, imparts sorrow throughout this community; for every body regards the aged man of God with no ordinary feelings of veneration and attachment. For more than fifty years has he filled the station of a minister in the Episcopal Church, and no prelate ever engrossed a greater share of the love of those whose spiritual welfare he had in charge. In his intercourse with our citizens, his simplicity, his bland and gentle manner, his kind-heavtedness and unaffected dignity of his deportment, commanded the respect and love of all.—[Richmond Compiler, Nov. 15.]

UNITED STATES FRIGATE RARTIAN.—The following reply of the Secretary of the Navy to the letter of General Prevost, embodying the sentiments of a public meeting in reference to the Raritan, will gratify the community:

NAVY DEFARTMENT,

16th Nov. 1841.

Sir.—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 13th inst. enclosing a copy of the proceedings of a large and respectable meeting of the citizens of Philadelphia, without distinction of party, relative to the immediate finishing and launching of the frigate Raritan, now on the stocks at the Navy Yard in that city. I accord fully in the views and opinions of that meeting. Convinced that we can rely on our navy alone for the defence of ohr seaboard during war, and for the protection of our commerce, both in war and peace, I feel the strongest desire for an immediate and great increase, both in the number and the efficiency of our vessels of war.

Acting upon this conviction, I had determined, before I heard of any movement on the subject in Philadelphia, to give the requisite order for finishing the Raritan, which order will be immediately issued.

I am, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

A. P. UPSHUR.

New York Exchange.—This imposing and costly structure is nearly finished. It measures 198 feet on Wall street, and in width on William street, 190 feet long, occupying an entire square. The material is dark granite, admirably suited for public buildings, as it never is injured by the weather. The Tribune says:

The centre of the edifice is to be occupied as an Exchange. This is peculiarly the department of the merchants. It is in the form of a Rotundo, 80 feet in diameter in the clear, with four recesses of 10 by 30 feet, situate at right angles. The curb of the dome is 80 feet from the floor, and has a sky light of 110 feet in circumference, which affords the only light admitted into the rotundo.

The interior of this room is finished in the richest, costilest and most beautiful manner. Each of the recesses have 2 Corinthian columns of Italian veined marble, 41 feet in height, and 5 feet in diameter. The antæs at the angles, the wanscottin, around the entire room 7 feet 6 inches high, and all the other triumings, as well as the floor are of the same material. The ceiling and walls are of stucco, richly or-amented. The exterior of the dome is covered with a copper roof, and the other sections of the building with stone.

The erection of the building was commenced in the Spring of 1836, since which time the number of hands employed on it have averaged about 250. At the time it was commenced, the late William W. Woolsey was President of the Corporation; he was succeeded by John A. Stevens, who still holds that station. tion.

The ground on which the building stands cost about $750,000. The entire cost of the Exchange will be about $1,100,000. The income from rents, when all the apartments are finished and occupied, will be
